

The Central Caribbean Marine Institute

CCMi also hosts weekend residencies for schoolchildren and older pupils where coral reef science and the principles of marine ecology are taught with practical study of the nearby Marine Park. Tertiary level students, post-graduates and academic visitors make up the bulk of the researchers using the laboratory facilities at CCMI and we regularly host high level programmes by NOAA scientists and coral scientists from around the world who value the unique location and facilities offered at the institute.